

Find the Hidden Treasures in Your Attic and See What They are Worth

Duncaster Brings Back Popular "Antiques Showcase" on July 29

BLOOMFIELD, CT., June 15, 2010 – It's back by popular demand – Duncaster's Antique Showcase – a way to find out what Grandma's china and Grandpa's watch are really worth. Last year the event yielded some exciting finds and the retirement community's leading the treasure hunt again. This year's event is on Thursday, July 29 from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. That's the day professional antique appraisers from Central Antiques, will come to the community's Bloomfield campus to look over those treasures and tell participants about their worth. Duncaster is located at 40 Loeffler Road, Bloomfield.

Jamie Selig, owner of Central Antiques in Windsor has been appraising antiques for over 12 years. He will appraise the items, giving participants a look into their history and possible worth.

"Last year Duncaster's Antiques Showcase had an overwhelming response. It was received so enthusiastically," says Duncaster Director of Marketing Patty Roohr. "It appears there are a lot of fans of PBS' Antiques Roadshow who wanted their own version of this popular series. We're happy to provide it again this year for everyone who can make it to our Bloomfield campus."

The event is free and open to anyone in the community but reservations are necessary. Duncaster is advising people to call and register as soon as possible to avoid disappointment. You can do so by contacting Fran at Duncaster at fkent@duncaster.org or (860) 380-5006 by July 26. Valet parking, refreshments and assistance will be available.
